Minimalist style is a design approach that pursues extreme simplicity, originating from the Modernist movement of the early 20th century. It emphasizes the removal of all unnecessary elements, expressing the core essence through the simplest forms. In furniture design, such as minimalist sofas, this is reflected in the use of minimal lines, pure colors, and streamlined materials.

Typically, it features smooth, crisp straight lines and contours. Colors are mostly basic tones like black, white, and gray, while materials consist primarily of simple yet textured leather or fabric, creating products that are both concise and full of texture.
